

Muffler & Exhaust

TRADE DIRECTORY 2010

Exhausts and mufflers are among the less glamorous and least understood aspects of your classic car, but you'll be going nowhere fast if your system isn't running well. Most owners have to trust the experts, which is why we produce this guide to specialist suppliers, manufacturers and repairers each year. These people can find out what's going wrong and advise on coatings, parts, safety and materials. Many routinely take on custom jobs and competition vehicles. Because they are typically enthusiasts themselves, they will also keep your car's overall design in mind and listen to your ideas. Exhausts and mufflers are among the less

In operation for 10 years, manager Darryl Hunt is introducing a product to his company's range. Called Sterling, the formula works. It provides a high-lustre coating that delivers performance advantages at temperatures up to 704C (1,300°F) on new or used parts, and contains silver powder to give a chrome-like shine. It's also easy to keep clean, and the same formula is available in satin black, blue and cast-iron grey. JET-HOT Hi-Lustre made from the MC-15 formula is still available, which holds its shine up to 760C and will protect parts up to 926C with excellent insulation.
